DEATH OF MRS. J. J. ASTOR,

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor died last night at 8.05. Her end was peaceful and painless. She was totally unconscious for many hours before she died.

All day yesterday the death of Mrs. Astor was momentarily expected, and people passing up and down Fifth avenue, wh

ETERNAL VIGILANCE THE PRICE.

Who did first discover that nugget of wisdom, "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty?"

It has been variously credited to EDMUND BURKE, THOMAS JEFFERSON, DANIEL WEBSTER and ANDREW JACKSON. HENRY GEORGE, in the last number of his paper, the Standard, attributes it to GEORGE WASHINGTON. BARTLETT'S "Dictionary of Familiar Quotations" says the author is unknown.

Whoever framed the ringing sentence, it expresses a profound truth. The most dangerous menace to free government is the neglect of popular rights. The world is built, and this country is the best part of it. Workingmen, merchants and professional men seem too much occupied with their private affairs to do their duty as citizens. At every election scarcely more than half of those who might vote go to the polls. Too many of those who do cast ballots do so with little judgment, unthinkingly voting the ticket prepared for them by men who may be more interested in perpetuating abuses than in serving the people.

When half the voters shrink their public duties entirely, and thousands of others perform theirs in a half-hearted and perfunctory manner, is it any wonder if public affairs are ruled by a class, as truly under a republican form of government as where government is constitutionally the prerogative of a privileged order?

This neglect of their political duty by thousands of those whom it is customary to class as "good citizens" is not the "eternal vigilance" that is "the price of liberty."

The right of self-government has been dearly bought; it is said that so many intelligent men fail to appreciate or faithfully exercise it.

Our republican form of government is in danger. No man or party would dare to attempt such a "coup d'etat" as has overthrown many another republic. But wherever government, though it be nominally in the hands of the people, is really carpets are the best in the world, none of them are exported. American carpet manufacturers say that with free trade in the raw materials they could meet the British manufacturers on their own ground and beat them in their own market. But because of government taxes on raw material while the British government does not, the cost of carpets in this country is greater than the cost in England, and all American export trade in carpets must be abandoned. The vast quantities of carpets

we might send to Europe, Asia, Canada, Mexico and South America are never made, because the untaxed British carpet can undersell us in those countries. The demand thus being artificially restricted to the home market the goods begin to accumulate in the warehouses, because they are made faster than the home demand can absorb them. Soon there is complaint of "over-production"; labor is thrown out of employ-ment or reduced to still more meagre wages, while capital goes to waste. Almost every week the papers tell of strikes or lockouts of carpet weavers.

President CLEVELAND has advocated the abolition of this unprotective and harmful tax. It should go.

Take off needless taxes! Open the foreign markets and give our laborers, manufacturers and merchants the benefit of the foreign demand!

THEY HAD BETTER NOT.

Certain Republican papers are calling upon the Senate to make "a searching investigation into the number and character of President CLEVELAND's appointments during the recess." Their claim is that there has been "a violation of the principle of a non-partisan civil service," and they urge the Republican majority in the Senate to take action. In other words, our partisan contemporaries would have their friends in the Senate do about as they did under the

ANDREW JOHNSON administration, viz.: refuse confirmation to all except Republican appointments. It's a very pretty programme, but they had better try to carry it out.

EDITORIAL POINTS.

The New York World would reduce the surplus 1, inaugurating penny postage. Not a bad idea.

There is one thing certain about the President's message. Editor DANA didn't write it for anybody's encyclopedia.

A St. John editor demands Canada's annexation to the United States. Never, while WIGGINS lives in Canada!

New York Sun: The trouble with American diplomats in Mexico has been that they have had inadvertently got too high.

It is doubtful if ever before in the history of the world any government has been seriously embarrassed by a treasury surplus.

HENRY GEORGE: "Mr. CLEVELAND has recognized the inevitable issue that is before the country, and has not shirked it."

Chicago Times: JULES FERRY was a magnetic statesman. It is a bad time for magnetic statesmen on both sides of the water.

The report that the presidential bee is being under the chapeau of LIDSWATER, General PHIL SHERIDAN cannot be true. The hero of Winchester is no fool.

The farmers, who, in consequence of the potato famine, are paying a duty of 10 cents per bushel on Nova Scotia potatoes, may not realize some of the beauties of the protective tariff.

THE KEELY motor stockholders are reported to be "patiently awaiting the triumph of the invention." Those men are champions of the world for patience; they take the belt away from Job.

General PHIL SHERIDAN could not improve his position in the hearts of the American people by trying to become president. Many a good soldier has burst the bubble reputation by turning politician.

Now that HON. EUGENE HIGGINS has determined to withdraw from the people's service, solely for private business reasons, the chestnut that "few died and none resigned" will have a short but well-earned vacation.

Mr. KEELY, of mythical motor fame, now calls his new force "vibratory sympathy." Its incredible power has been shown by the way it makes the dollar sympathetically vibrate out of the stockholders' pockets and into his own.

New York Herald: "Don't you dare to touch that tariff," roars Mr. Blaine by cable from his Paris hotel. But "high tariff makes low wages" is going to be the American workingman's answer to Mr. Blaine's bullying dispatch.

Senator CULLOM's bill to establish a postal telegraph service fixes the rate at 10 cents for 20 words. At this rate telegraph messages ought to be very common, but they can never become so frequent as to scare every woman who receives one.

They have had a big snowstorm in Texas, which is further south than any other State in the Union except Florida. This is about the worst Southern drought reported this year. It seems probable if the South is going to take its climate away from us.

A hotel in Ohio which had withstood the storms of 40 years was blown down the other day. The catastrophe must have occurred while Governor FORAKER was stopping there. He is believed to be about the biggest blower in this country at present.

The New York Sun wants one-cent postage, because it would make a big hole in the surplus and postpone the reduction of taxes on the people's food and clothing.

One-cent postage would be a nice thing in itself, but let us be just before we are generous.

Secretary BAYARD has demanded indemnity for Editor A. K. CUTTING, who was imprisoned in Mexico last year in violation of international law. It is better late than never. It is time for Mexico to pay for some of her outrageous treatment of American citizens.

The Czar seems just spoiling for a fight with somebody, but never quite ready to begin. At present it is said that he is engaged in inspiring various editorialists in Russian newspapers. The "antecedent of the Russian" may not be quite prepared to fight, but he can at least talk in print.

The Republican party took its stand then (in 1884) on the side of the existing economic system, but CLEVELAND could not be induced to say ten words on the subject of the tariff. (New York Tribune.)

Has the Tribune forgotten that Mr. CLEVELAND, in a speech at Newark, shortly before the election of 1884, clearly defined his position on the tariff? It was exactly the position he has taken in his recent message, too.

HUGH McCULLOUGH has incurred the contempt of the lesser Republican organ of the city just because he approves President CLEVELAND's message and has the non-partisan manliness to say so. This Republican convention composed of the most radical "fossilized." It should remember, however, that the last Republican president could not have considered HUGH McCULLOUGH a "fossil" or he would not have appointed him secretary of the treasury.

The Republican papers are having a good deal to say about "

It is believed that the fishery commissioners have given up all hope of finding a general treaty, and that they hope to accomplish it as an agreement, a protocol defining anew the maritime certain clauses of the treaty of 1818 as to those relating to bait and supplies, and to the transshipments of goods.
